

Perverved lawmaker sad to learn real definition of 'animal husbandry'
– Page R

Volume 1, Issue 6, Photocopy freely

The Oklahoma Real-ass issues. Fake-ass news Partisan

Sen. Herb Rozell has your term limits right here, buddy
– Page D

Subscribe for free by e-mail:
governorjackwalton@hotmail.com

Female lawmakers back mandatory foreplay proposal

By Johnston Murray, Partisan Staff Reporter

A bipartisan coalition of female lawmakers is backing a bill that would require men to engage in foreplay for at least 10 minutes prior to any act of sexual intercourse.

Supporters say that HB 24601 would increase the state's cuddling and snuggling index. Oklahoma currently ranks 47th in the nation for pre-coital interaction.

"We don't think it's unreasonable for Oklahoma's men to invest some time in pillow talk, hugging and kissing," said Rep. Sue Tibbs, R-Tulsa. "Don't get us wrong, we're all about the freaky-deaky sex, we just think that guys should have to work for it."

"This bill would help lower Oklahoma's teen pregnancy rate," said Sen. Angela Monson, D-Oklahoma City. "Most Oklahoma men want to spend about five minutes getting their groove on. Monson said that, if men were required to actually talk to their lovers, many would probably opt for Internet porn instead.

Female backing for the bill was bipartisan, with Democrats saying that the bill would help the children and Republicans arguing that it would boost economic development.

Rep. Bill Graves, R-Oklahoma City, said he will vote against the bill, as he opposes any legislation that would benefit women.

Furthermore, Graves said, the legislation presumes the existence of a female orgasm.

According to Graves, the female orgasm is "a controversial theory which some scientists present as scientific explanation. No one has ever seen a female orgasm. Therefore, any statement about its existence should be considered as theory, not fact."

There is some male backing for the legislation, described by

A number of male legislators oppose the bill, saying that it would hurt their families by increasing the amount of time they had to spend with their mistresses.

Sen. James Williamson, R-Tulsa, rejected suggestions that the bill would reaffirm "Oklahoma values." Williamson has been the official arbiter of Oklahoma values since his election in 1996.

"Oklahoma values are primarily centered around discriminating against homosexuals. We can't be wasting time spewing a bunch of mushy crap when we just want to get our freak on," Williamson said.

Not all male legislators oppose the bill, although those that support it are considered to be

"Don't get us wrong, we're all about the freaky-deaky sex, we just think that guys should have to work for it."

– Rep. Sue Tibbs, R-Tulsa

a bunch of pussies.

However, some real men have backed the proposal.

Sen. Frank Shurden, D-Henryetta, said he would consider voting for the legislation, providing nothing in the bill would require him to take his boots off.

Freaky-ass buffalo statues best viewed on Ecstasy

OKLAHOMA CITY (OP) – According to a new study by the Oklahoma City Chamber of Commerce, the city's freaky psychedelic fiberglass buffalo statues are most enjoyable when residents are tripping balls.

The "Spirit of the Buffalo" project is designed to increase awareness of nature conservation. Already, the exhibition has drawn rave reviews from residents whether they be stoned, fucked up, trippin' or hammered.

"Dude, I am blitzed out of my fuckin' mind here," said Shane Boyd, Dairy Queen cashier and part-time skateboarder. "Is that buffalo supposed to be wearing a tie?" he asked, vaguing gesturing toward a buffalo statue that was, in fact, supposed to be wearing a tie.

Sponsored by local corporations and decorated by a variety of artists, the downtown statues have been alternately described as freaky and trippy. A Chamber of Commerce survey reported that the most common response was "Whoa" followed closely by "that is not even right, man."

Above: One of Oklahoma's City's new "Spirit of the Buffalo" statues that is freaking awesome when you're totally fucked out of your skull, man.

Spectators said the statues were most enjoyable when viewed on Ecstasy, followed by acid, shrooms, pot and pseudoephedrine.

In any case, the fiberglass statues now outnumber Oklahoma's real buffalo population by a 3:1 margin.

In other news...

– Turpen eats Hargis

– Bob Anthony plunges into fires of Mount Doom following scuffle with hobbit. Whereabouts of 'Precious' unknown

– Boren announces fundraising drive to expand campus, build mind-control space laser – With SR19, Sen. Nichols appeals to Washington Lady Warriors Class 2A Girls Basketball State Champions demographic