

Henry says EDGE 2005 will feature 50 percent more smoke, mirrors
— Page D

Volume 1, Issue 9, Photocopy freely

The Oklahoma Real-ass issues. Fake-ass news Partisan

Rural lawmakers planning aggressive effort to court black voter
— Page R

Subscribe for free by e-mail:
governorjackwalton@hotmail.com

Hiett calls for resignation of entire Democratic Party

Citing the need to protect Oklahoma's children from improved health care and broader educational opportunities, House Minority Leader Todd Hiett, D-Kellyville, called for the resignation of Oklahoma's Democratic Party.

"For too long, the Democratic Party has clogged the legislature with plans to extend health care to the poor, boost teacher salaries and provide drug rehabilitation programs for addicts. The resignation of the party is necessary to proceed with important business such as reforming workers compensation and absolving corporations of responsibility to consumers," Hiett said in a Wednesday press conference.

So far, Hiett has sought the resignations of Senate President Pro Tempore Cal Hobson, D-Lexington, Senate President Pro Tempore Emeritus Stratton Taylor, D-Oklahoma City and Rep. Mike Mass, D-Hartshorne. He also seeks the resignation of Oklahoma Insurance Commissioner Carroll Fisher, Gov. Brad Henry, two dogs and fifteen cats thought to be opposed to tort reform.

Hiett is expected to present the call for resignation to House Speaker Larry Adair, D-Stillwell, who is expected to flip him the bird.

Rep. Todd Hiett, R-Kellyville

In other news...

— Lt. Governor calls for special commission to determine what the hell she's supposed to do all day

— Ronnie Kaye now older than God

Meacham attributes legislative success to magic purple pimp hat

By Lee Cruce, Partisan Staff Writer

From tobacco compacts to gambling and Medicaid expansion, state finance director Scott Meacham was one of the most effective forces in Oklahoma government. However, the Elk City banker is quick to give credit where credit is due, acknowledging the magical powers of his purple pimp hat.

"The hat keeps my (prostitutes) in line," said Meacham. "Tobacco retailers are all like, 'We can't compete with the tribes' and I'm like, 'Be cool bitches.' You gotta respect the hat. Otherwise you get the slap."

Meacham said his headgear's purple velvet crown makes him seem more approachable, while the zebra-stiped band subtly indicates that he ain't fuckin' around.

Legislators and other officials are generally supportive of Meacham's hat, although they have a less-favorable opinion of his vicious backhand slaps.

"I was arguing gambling expansion about a month ago," said Rep. Forrest Claunch, R-Midwest City, "and the next thing I know, I'm getting slapped across the face while Scott Meacham, director of the Office of State Finance, says his magical pimp hat keeps his bitches in line during the lengthy process of negotiation.

Scott screams 'Who's your daddy?'"

Meacham explained that, in the course of his work, it is often necessary to lay the smack down on punk bitches.

"You got a problem, you can take it up with the hat," he said.

Punk-ass bitches have asked Gov. Brad Henry to restrain Meacham. However, following an assault by "the five fingers of progress," Henry said he ain't goin' there again.

Feral Steve Largent found living in governor's basement

OKLAHOMA CITY (OP) — On Tuesday, officials with the Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation confirmed that Steve Largent, former football star, U.S. representative and gubernatorial candidate, was found living in the basement of the governor's mansion.

The discovery concludes a year-long investigation into the fate of the popular, good-looking jock, who had not been heard from following his defeat by student-council dweeb Brad Henry in the 2002 election.

Officials says Largent has been living in the manion's basement since the defeat, surviving off Sonic leftovers discarded by the Henry family.

Largent was largely incoherent, but appears to think he has been running Oklahoma government from his nest of filth.

He seemed please to announce the successful passage of workers compensation and tort reform, before flinging feces at Animal Control officers.

"Man, that's pretty messed up," said Henry.